

AGRICULTURAL CLASSICS is a compilation of 200 years of stories printed in Progressive Farmer published by Oxmoor Press. Nilah Turner's light-hearted story called "Which End is Up?" is among the selections chosen, and is the first submission she ever made. Other authors' writing are from Clarence Poe, Jesse Stuart, S. Omar Barker and Thomas Caryle. The foreword says pieces were chosen for nostalgia, inspiration, vivid memories, recollections, laughs and maybe pathos here and there of days gone by.
